ACCEPTS CITY JOB AND GIVES IT UP SEGREGATION TO BE GIVEN HEARING

Barley Kain Is Temporarily Charmed by $70 Position as City Hall Watchman.

The prospect of a $70-a-month job as City Hall watchman charmed Barley Kain, when he accepted the position yesterday at the hands of the Administrative Board, but later in the day the prospect ceased to please, and he notified the board that he had decided not to accept it.

Mr. Kain, a former baseball player, and a one-time member of the Fire Department, is a frequent attendant upon the daily sessions of the Administrative Board. He was present yesterday when the board took up the emergency question of filling the vacancy on the city hall, which was caused by the recent death of Thomas Williams.

One member of the board, seeing kain in the room, proposed his name, and he was promptly elected. Mr.
Kain, who was taken by surprise, rose to the emergency and accepted the post. A watchman's job in the city is not a sinecure, but nevertheless, and $70 a month is not bad pay. Two months, however, Mr. Kain reported, of his brigade and released his commission, and the position is therefore still unfilled.

The board, according to the bidding process, has so far nominated four men for the vacant post, and the choice will be left to the voters.

MARY LEE UNVEILS DAVIS MEMORIAL

Bronze Tablet to Confederate President Placed on Post-Office Building.

MARKS A HISTORIC SITE

Edwin P. Cox, in Address, Refers to Change in American Sentiment.

Little Mary Custis Lee, daughter of Captain Robert E. Lee and granddaughter of General Robert E. Lee, in charge of a large group of Confederate veterans, members of the Confederate Memorial Literary Society and citizens, yesterday afternoon unveiled the bronze tablet placed on the Main Street side of the post-office to commemorate the fact that the object of their visitation is the office of President Jefferson Davis, of the Confederacy.
The unveiling was preceded by simple exercises and closed with the singing of "Dixie" and "Auld Lang Syne."

The handsome bronze tablet, measuring 3x5 feet, is erected by the Confederate Memorial Literary Society. It bears the following inscription:

"This wall was once a part of the Treasury Building of the Confederate States of America. In it were the offices of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Treasurer of the Confederate Bank, and the Postmaster General.
President Jefferson Davis, who had been indicted May 8, 1865, under the charge of treason against the United States, appeared either in person or by counsel before the Circuit Court of June 5, 1865, and seven times. Each time he was present upon the quest of the government, and the case was ended forever without trial by formal dismissal on February 15, 1865."

Cox Makes Address.

A part of the garrison of the Confederate Soldiers Home, members of the Confederate Memorial Literary Society, and distinguished guests assembled in the east lobby of the postoffice at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and were called to order by General Charles J. Anderson.

The exercises were opened by a short prayer by the Rev. James T. Smith, D. D.

Anson Thompson, president of the Confederate Memorial Literary Society.

"We people of America have forgotten our differences," said Mr. Cox. "Today we are experiencing a national reunion, a national gathering, a national unity, and the Southern cause just here in this building Jefferson Davis became a martyr to attest the justness of his cause. This country never produced a more patriotic statesman than Davis."

Patriotism. Mr. Cox's address the audience moved out to the sidewalk, and lined up facing the tablet. Without further preliminary, Miss Lee pulled the cord attached to the canvas covering and revealed the tablet.

The tablet was set up in the walls of the post-office, in the authority of Secretary of the Treasury, McClellan, and General Joseph E. Johnston.

Johnston, who readily gave his consent when questioned by the Confederate Memorial Literary Society. This organization has placed a number of bronze tablets marking historic spots in and around the city.

LEE'S ONE MISTAKE
AT GETTYSBURG

Should Have Officially Decapitated Longstreet, Says Dr. Mc-Kim in Address to Camp.

Before an audience that completely filled the hall, Rev. Randolph H. Mc-Kim, D. D., of Washington, delivered an address on the "Battle of Gettysburg" that night under the auspices of Lee Camp, a United Confederate Veterans, Dr. McKim, who himself is a distinguished veteran of the Confederate service, outlined the history of the campaign preceding the three-day struggle and fully described the leading events. He traced the movements of each army corps both before and during the battle and pointed out the many errors of judgment that prevented success to the Confederate army.

Lee's only mistake, said Dr. McKim, was his failure to officially decapitate

Longstreet or his subordinate in field during the campaign in order to keep him from uniting with Ewell and thus defeating the Confederate cause.
